Fuse Box: Graham Kendrick Part 2

Having already welded together a range of classic Delirious? albums – as well as Graham Kendrick's own Shine Jesus Shine with Is Anyone Thirsty – the Fuse Box series has found itself another worthy subject of inspiring melding: Graham's genius works What Grace and Do Something Beautiful.

Originally released in 2001 and 2003 respectively, the two albums represent one of the many periods where Graham Kendrick found himself at the heart of contemporary worship. Featuring duets with Darlene Zschech, Matt Redman, Martin Smith and Tim Hughes, these two albums once again underline quite why Graham Kendrick is such a well recognized Christian household name.

"Every song I've ever seen of Graham's" says Matt Redman "seems to be crammed full of poetic, divine, biblical truth."

Darlene Zschech described her own reactions like this:

"It has been an absolute honour to take part in this project – my respect for Graham and his unparalleled commitment and contribution to worship and worshippers continues to teach and inspire me to know and love Jesus more."
